HIGH PERFORMANCE MANAGER
Holds four sport partnerships for QAS

Monday in the Brisbane office with the other High Performance Managers and the performance support leads. Tuesday to Thursday with the sports at Casuarina, Miami and the paddle and skate bases. The Carrara office is used between visits.

WHAT IT DOES

FOUR FUNCTIONS

- Resourcing. QAS investment follows the gaps each sport's What It Takes To Win shows and is reviewed through the year.
- Alignment. One plan per athlete across QAS and the sport, with clear decision rights.
- Executive reporting. Concise, honest and early reporting to QAS leadership on where each program is and what it needs.
- Critical friend. A step back from the daily work with a balcony view, bringing what other sports are learning and challenging where it matters.

WHO IT WORKS WITH

INFLUENCE, NOT AUTHORITY

- Performance Support Managers. One in each sport. They sit within the sport and lead its medical, physical preparation, psychology, nutrition and science practitioners. They are the role's closest day to day partners.
- The sports. High performance directors, head coaches and podium and pathway managers.
- QAS. Embedded practitioners, their discipline leads and the High Performance Programs team.
- The national system. The AIS and other institutes, including categorisation panels.

WHAT IT TAKES TO WIN

THE BENCHMARK EVERYTHING IS MEASURED AGAINST

Each national sporting organisation owns a What It Takes To Win model built backwards from the winning performance at the pinnacle event. QAS does not write it. The role uses it to direct investment to the gaps it exposes and to judge progress.

| GAP ANALYSIS | INDIVIDUAL PLAN | CATEGORISATION | INVESTMENT |
|---|---|---|---|
| Each athlete profiled against the model | Addresses those gaps | Evidence of future podium capability | National and QAS support follows |

PROGRESSION MARKERS

HOW SUCCESS IS READ

Athletes are categorised each year on evidence of future podium capability.

| EMERGING | DEVELOPING | PODIUM POTENTIAL | PODIUM READY | PODIUM |
|---|---|---|---|---|

Each program is read through five lenses in one report: investment, environment, availability, progression and performance. Each builds the next, so a struggling environment shows up before results do. Programs are read across three horizons: the daily training environment now, benchmark events and qualification towards Los Angeles 2028 next and the Brisbane 2032 pathway later.
